

Narrative Evaluation of Roseanna Quick
COM 499 – Senior Project in New Media Production

Professor/Advisor: Gregg Perkins
Associate Professor, Department of Communication

Roseanna completed a project where she coded an iPhone application that played audio samples in specific geographical locations (within Plant Park) when a user passed through these zones. The work she completed during the semester included writing and recording eight short musical pieces in the Advanced Audio Suite with Apple Logic X, learning to use Apple Xcode app building software and coding an application that performed the above function. The resulting piece produces a melodic and dreamy soundtrack to a user's experience of the park.

This project exceeds the expectations we place on Senior Seminar students in New Media Production. It is admirable that Roseanna not only applied her previous knowledge of programming and audio recording but learned new platforms in the production of this project.